the Larus building.
Captain Charles F. Taylor and Fire Chief Joynes said that they fought the fire as scientifically as they could, and that water was not thrown uselessly on any part of the fire.

Worked Under Difficulty. "The fire jumped the alleyway," said Chief Joynes, "and got under the other roof. The Williams factory was lower than the other, and the flames had easy access. Had there been a parapet wall we might have prevented the damage. But no man could live in that alley. Bricks were falling all about us, and the tobacco smoke, the worst in the world, would have snuffed out our lives. Fire under a roof is hard to fight, and we had to work against to You will find that the inside of the building is not so much damaged as one would think from looking at it from the outside. His words were true, for damage by fire was not so extensive as it had appeared to be from the outside. The roof was burned and fallen in, but the top floor was practically untouched by flames. Of course, all the tobacco on that floor was burned and destroyed, but below, on the other floors, no tire had found its way. Water poured through, and the building was wet from top to mottom. But in places some of the stock had not been touched by the water, and Chief Joynes believes that the damage will be found to be not so great as it had been imagined it would be from outward appearance: and quick judgment. "Curbstone fire fighters," said Chief Joynes, "are always ready to criticize.

We expect it." No Serious Injury.

Records at Fire Department head-quarters at the City Hall show that the fire at the Williams tobacco factory must have gained great headway before it was discovered. The first notice came at 12:12 P. M., as a still alarm from Engine Comfrom the burning building. At 12:14 P. Washington, D. C., February 24.—The case involving the right of Senator Lorimer, of Illinois, to retain his seat was advanced to-day to a position, where the Senate must filibuster or vote upon it.

At the conclusion of a three days' speech by Senator Beveridge, the leader of the anti-Lorimer forces, Chairman Burrows, of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, made several ineffectual attempts to have a day fixed for a vote upon the case. He suggested days as far in advance as March 1, only two days prior to the legislative day on which the Sixty-first Congress will expire by constitutional limitation. By a vote of the Senate, the resolution on the Lorimer case was made the unfinished business.

Washington, D. C., February 24.—
Opponents of the Canadian reciprocity agreement attempted to put a quietus on legislation on the subject when the McCall bill to carry out the provisions of the agreement late to-day was reported "without recommendation" from the Senate Committee on Finance. Return of the bill to the Senate by Acting Chairman Burrows, of the Pinance Committee, was made the occasion for brief speeches both in opposition and in favor of early action.
